The region of Umbria in central Italy is one of Italy's smallest and the only landlocked region on the peninsula. Dominated by the Appenines, its rolling verdant hills and spectacular scenery have inspired some of the country's finest art and spirituality, not to mention food and wine.

Chiesa del Carmine is the ancient church on the Carmine Estate, located at the foot of Monte Tezio in a protected valley, where the wildlife is abundant and nature is thriving. The views from all aspects are stunning. To the south is Monte Subasio and the town of Assisi, to the west the ancient castle of Antognolla and to the north woodlands and the mountains ranges of the Appenines.

The Carmine estate has been lovingly restored and includes an ancient olive grove, a truffle wood and pasture and 5.7 hectares of vineyards, all farmed organically.

Trebbiano Spoletino

Trebbiano Spoletino is a variety that is native to Umbria and was saved from extinction in the 1960's. It has nothing to do with the large family of Trebbiano grapes planted throughout Italy. Unfortunately, in 2020, the Ministry of Agriculture passed a law change that all Trebbiano Spoletino wines which are not part of the DOC Spoleto (produced within the area of Spoleto and Montefalco) can no longer be labelled Trebbiano Spoletino. Chiesa del Carmine decided to relabel their wine Indigeno Trebbiano.

Indigeno Trebbiano IGT

Trebbiano Spoletino, although part of the ubiquitous Trebbiano family, is found only in Umbria, especially in the townships of Spoleto. The vineyard is planted at 5000 vines per hectare at 260-295 metres above sea level, on calcareous soil rich in alberese and quartz stones. Fermented and aged in stainless steel, this is fresh and crisp with floral notes and citrus fruit. The palate shows minerality and classic Italian sapidita'.
